Voices for climate change education [3]

NCSE is pleased to announce the debut of a new resource in the climate change section of its website: "Voices for climate change education." [4] Following the model of Voices for Evolution [5], NCSE's unique collection of organizational statements endorsing the teaching of evolution, "Voices for climate change education" assembles organizational statements endorsing the teaching of climate change. Included so far are extracts from the National Research Council, the US Global Change Research Program, the National Association of Geoscience Teachers, the American Geological Institute, the American Geophysical Union, the Geological Society of America, the American Chemical Society, and UNESCO. The full text of these statements will be added in the future. So will further organizational statements endorsing the teaching of climate change — so if you spot any, be sure to let NCSE know [6]!
